1. The first thing I noticed when I stepped out of the plane was the cold. It was a sharp contrast to the warm, humid air of the tropics. I shivered as I walked towards the terminal, my hands tucked into my pockets. The ground was frozen, and the air was thick with ice. I had heard that the weather was bad, but I didn't realize it would be this bad. The snow was falling fast, and the visibility was low. I wasn't used to this kind of weather, and I felt a little lost. The people around me were all bundled up in heavy coats and hats. I looked at myself and realized I was underdressed.
I had only a light jacket and some trousers. I was in for a rough ride.
The plane was delayed, and I had to wait for hours. I tried to stay warm by walking around, but the cold was too much for me. I ended up sitting on a bench, wrapped in a blanket.
The flight was long, and the cabin was cold. I was uncomfortable, but I tried to make the best of it. I looked out the window and saw the snow-covered landscape. It was beautiful, but also a little scary.
I had never seen so much snow before.
The plane landed, and I stepped out into the cold. I was greeted by a man in a uniform. He told me that my room was ready. I followed him to a small, cozy room. It was just what I needed. The bed was warm, and the fire was crackling. I finally felt at home. I had made it through the worst of the winter.
